Greetings

If this, the second volume of the Harveyan,
contains certain memories which, in the twilight days of life, will carry us back to the scenes of our Alma Mater; if it embodies those remembrances which we hold dear;
if it shall serve to kindle the fire of recollection which we would treasure,
then we have not labored in vain

Editorial

THE feeling that inevitably accompanies the completion of any work of love is the depressing one of failure. While we have our work it keeps us up, and spurs us on to highest endeavor, and in the mere working and labor the result is, for the time, lost sight of, we are satisfied; but when that work is completed and we have its companionship taken from us, then standing face to face with the result attained, we feel that the work has fallen so far short of what we would have it that it seems to us even a greater failure than it really is. The great love which prompts the work, the higher ideal which inspires it,—the more sickening and absolute must the failure seem to the loving worker.

So we, the editors of the second edition of The Harveyan, come before you, feeling, because our hearts are so full of the Alma Mater love, which has ever been to all her sons so high a source of inspiration, because we have striven with the best in ourselves to make this work worthy of her, that now, when we stand face to face with the result of our labors, so much we would have done has been left undone, so much we would like to see more perfect has been marred in the making; that the result is to us a disappointment. Feeling this dissatisfaction with our work, we trust that there will be something in it that will redeem it from absolute failure and make its perusal a pleasure to you.

In this work we have endeavored to make it a true picture of college-life at Morris Harvey in all its various phases. Where we have fallen short we ask your indulgence with our mistakes and shortcomings; where we have succeeded we ask your heartiest congratulations for our successes and attainments.

To the students, we would have this volume be a constant reminder of your college days, an open Sesame, which will carry you back to the days of college ideals and high enthusiastic endeavor, of friendships wrought in work and play; that Sesame, which will unlock for you the richest treasures of memory to strengthen and sustain you, comfort and cherish you, when the scenes that are now so familiar to you become far-distant memories. Sometimes when you turn over these pages the sound of dearly-loved voices will come back to you, fresh and youthful as of yore; and you will live over victories and defeats of class-room, hall and athletic field, rejoicing over the victories and sorrowing over the defeats as truly as you do today.

And to you, our brothers, alumni of the Alma Mater, we hope that this work will serve to show that Morris Harvey still follows the same high ideals and lofty endeavors, which have characterized her. To you we stretch out our hands in friendship and brotherly greeting, feeling that we are bound together by the highest, firmest ties of common interest in the well being of our fostering mother.

The staff wishes to take this opportunity to express to President Pettis its deep felt gratitude for his help and the interest he has shown in this publication. It was he who inspired and fostered it and through his high ideals helped us to carry it on to completion.

So we now lay our work before you, asking that you accept it not for what it is, but for what it strives to be. Let it mean to you best endeavors put into a work of love as a slight token of our devotion to the Alma Mater who means so much to all her children.

Class Poem

Gone are the golden days! Men call them thus,
Though often we have failed to find them,
The gilded glitter and joyous gleam,
Our elders fondly have to tell us of.
We doubt them not; just as the mountain stream
Clears from the miner's pan the sand and silt
And leaves the precious yellow grains behind.
So will the very quickening flood of time
Sweep the dull, dross from memory's hoard,
And brings a beauteous luster to the light.
Past is our college life! Oh how we have
To turn our eyes back to that day of days
When we first entered Morris Harvey's halls,
Fresh from the furrowed farm withal to learn,
Or full sophisticated from the swing,
And where of cities, knowing, all of all,
Excepting one small thing—our ignorance!
But we are one today, the college hall,
Impartial equalizer of mankind.
With cooling atmosphere, has cleared our brains,
And broader, deeper, saner, sends us forth.
Here part our paths; henceforth no fostering will Controls our steps and lends us a kindly hand,
To calm us, troubled, raise us when we fall,
The hand remains, 'tis true, but in our pride
And strength of manhood, independent grown,
We are now contented to keep within
The radius of the arm that bore us up,
But long to sail above some new known swell,
So let it ever be, throughout the world
The son must higher than father reach,
If mankind strive upward through the years,
We may not exalt a father's name,
But God forbid that one shall drag it down.
And now, farewell. May each one live his life
As best comes the friend of those he loves,
Striving to serve each day his fellowman,
And with the plaudit of a loving God.

ELDRIDGE HAMPTON BARNETTE, A. B.
Barboursville, West Va.

Editor-in-Chief Scribbler's Literary Club '19-'20; Principal Commercial Department M. H. C. '19-'20; President Phi Delta Literary Society '21-'22; Western Virginia Conference M. E. C. S. '20-'21; Pastor Madison '21-'22; Pastor Peach Creek '22-'23; Diploma Christian Education '23; President Senior Class '23.

"Large is his bounty, and his soul sincere."

Daddy is one of the best known members of the '23 Class. A man well met, one of great ability, a deep thinker and industrious. Hampton has deep brotherly feeling and as a minister we expect great work from him; in school he has always been a Professor's joy. As a teacher he is hard-boiled. In various activities of school life he has taken a very active part and was star of the Preacher's Quintet.

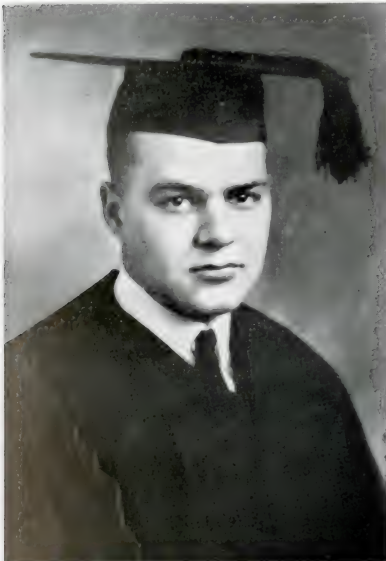

HENRY LEONARD CLAY, A. B.
Barboursville, West Va.

B. P. Class of 1900; Valedictorian; Western Virginia Conference M. E. C. S.; Pastor Prestonsburg '10-11; Parsons '11-15; Point Pleasant; Vice-president of Board of Education Western Virginia Conference '18; Board of Trustees M. H. C. '18; Presiding Elder Charleston District, '19-21, Huntington District '21-23.

"Deep sighted in intelligence, ideas, atoms and influence."

Rev. Mr. "Henry Clay" was a student in M. H. C. in his boyhood days, graduating with the class of '00. He has been in the field of service as a teacher, banker and minister since receiving his B. P. degree. He felt, however, that it would be a splendid opportunity to receive his Bachelor's Degree with the Class of '23 and joined us early in the year. He holds distinction as a pulpit orator, and is officially connected with the church; at present time he is Presiding Elder of Huntington District M. E. C. S. He stands at the threshold of greatness.

HARVEY ROW FIFE, B. S.

Buffalo Hollow, West Va.

Letter Man Basketball, '17-'18; Football '20. Member Phi Delta Literary Society, Chi Beta Phi, Varsity Club, K. V. Club, Veterans' Club. Social hour—6 hours.

"A lion among the ladies is a dreadful thing."

Harvey Fife, better known as "Row," has been a student in M. H. C. ever since he had his first long trousers. Nothing seems to separate him from the love of his Alma Mater. After serving in the training camps he found his way back. He is a good athlete, having won his football and basketball letters. He is also a splendid student, and has given more attention to his college work than anything else. He seeks the field of Chemical Engineering and what he seeks he will find. In him the future will soon have an "all chemist."

THOMAS E. JEFFERS, A. B.

Charleston, W. Va. .

Graduate of Broadus Junior College, President Sophomore, Archian Society, Wit Club; Phi Delta Literary Society, Scribblers' Literary Club, Chi Beta Phi, President Student Body, President Inter-collegiate Debating Team, Secretary Senior Class.

"A gentleman in every respect."

Thomas is a student, a thinking student—not a grind. He gets his knowledge from both books and life. He therefore excels in the class room and is a hail-fellow, well-met on the campus. He is enthusiastic, yet reserved. Thomas is what you might call a good all-round college man.

HARRY FRANCIS KING, A. B.

Cottageville, West Va.

President Phi Delta Literary Society '19,
Contestant '19, '21, Editor-in-Chief Comet
'21-'22, President Scribblers' Literary Club,
'22-'23, Honor Society.

"On the lips of his subduing tongue, all kinds of argument."

Known among a number of his friends as Reverend Mr. King, but about the campus generally hailed as Harry, he is recognized a good fellow. Coming to M. H. C. in 1917, he has spent the greater part of his time since then in work here, particularly in the literary field. Phi Deltaism and politics have been his main hobbies, but off the campus those are exchanged for Mrs. King and the two young hopefuls who Da-da him all about the cozy little bungalow in which he may usually be found. Another special interest is his various charges, he having been recognized as a minister of unusual worth in the conference.

JAMES BROOKE PETTIS, B. S.
Norfolk, Virginia

Chi Beta Phi; Editor-in-Chief of Harveyan;
Instructor in Biology; Virginian Club; B.
K.; Varsity Club; Football Team 1923; D.
W. Club; Misogynist Club; Sigma Nu.

"A mind serene for contemplation."

"Uncle Jimmy," the only Virginian in our class, is a very industrious man. As a bacteriologist, we expect much of our Virginian friend. His taste however does not belong to "microbes" entirely, it being divided between them and the ladies. At the opening of school and for some time afterward it was generally thought that Jimmy was a one-woman man, but as usual he fell too, and now he is one of the ladies' men of Morris Harvey.

EARNEST SPENCE SHANNON, A. B.

Parkersburg, West Va.

Scribblers' Literary Club, B. K. Varsity Club, Pierian Literary Society, Billingsley Hall Student Govt. Board '22, Junior Class President '22-'23., Chairman Lyceum Committee '22-'23, Editor-in-Chief Comet '22-'23, Manager Football '21, Pig Pen President '22-'23, Science Club, Chi Beta Phi.

"Nothing but himself can be his parallel."

Earnest ("Spence") came to M. H. C. from Parkersburg High. He has taken a part in all school activities. From the very first, when he buncoed the Kangaroo Court to the toot of the last whistle, he has been keeping someone guessing. If it has not been a love affair, it has been a Pig Pen and of course when it comes to turning sod, Spence is a "grunder." His ability as an editor has been shown by the Comet this year. Shannon will be remembered as a man who had time for all school activities and yet kept his work up to the "A" standard.

Item IX—To the Department of English, we do will and bequeath our "Collection of Essays," the complete work of said essays to be bound in twenty volumes and to occupy section 1923 in the Library.

Item XI—To the Department of Modern Languages we do will and bequeath one copy of our "Method of Pronunciation."

Item XII—To the Department of Greek and Economics we do will and bequeath one "Professor," said professor to be selected by the trustees of our estate.

Item XIII—To the Scientific Department we do will and bequeath several freaks which may be easily picked up from around the doors of the Annex or Rosa Harvey Hall porch benches at social hour. We would suggest that these be subject to immediate investigation. After a full analysis has been made we do will and order that the skins of the said freaks (Ringtails) be placed in the curio cabinet of the Biological Department and that the brass extracted from the said freaks occupy a place in the curio cabinet of the Chemical Department.

Item XIV—To the Department of Mathematics we do will and bequeath the geometric solution to the following problems:

1. To find the square equivalent to a circle.
2. To trisect a given angle.
3. To double short and long.

These solutions have, heretofore, been kept secret, but will be found hidden in a cream and purple sock beneath the flower stand in the Math room.

Item XV—We do hereby appoint Will Goode and Uncle Peter sole administrators of our estate.

In witness whereof, we, the Senior Class of 1923, of Morris Harvey College, have set hereunto our hand and seal, this thirtieth day of May, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty Three.

(Seal) SENIOR CLASS OF MORRIS
HARVEY COLLEGE

Signed, sealed, declared, and published by the Senior Class of 1923 of Morris Harvey College, as and for their last will and testament in the presence of us, who, at their request, and in their presence, do subscribe our name as witness.

Junior Class History

“GOING somewhere?” “To college,” proudly spake twelve little children as they marched off from home to enter the fields of learning. Taking oath to adjure the sight of all dissipations, they encamped and were duly labeled the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-four.

Since then, two members have gone into other fields of work; one promised to “love, honor and obey,” and another who grew just a little high, was welcomed heartily into the class just one above us. Several men, desirous of our ever-increasing popularity, joined the band.

On a Monday night, several months after the arrival of this said army, the Freshmen class presented a farce, “Training a Husband,” to dear old Barboursville. The novel entertainment met with well-merited applause. As the crowd wended its way homeward, all voted the evening to have been most enjoyably spent.

At the time of the writing of this history, the shieks and shiekesses of our class are working diligently, every afternoon and every night on the “Arrival of Kitty.” Perhaps we need funds to buy flowers for the biggest social event of the season, THE JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET.

We have the best scholastic standing of all classes. Well represented are we on the athletic field with good men. Topnotch business men, executors, treasurers, editors, authors, actors, singers, sling-footers, tobacco-bums,—and—the most ardent lovers of the twentieth century.

This is no good. I know. Just give me time. I am uncertain now. “A senior is one who knows and knows that he knows,” and we have only one year left to learn. Expect anything in the next Harveyan. All the senior section of 1924 may be filled with fact which make up our memorable history.

Sophomore History

VERY reluctantly, I yield to the command of our class president to write the history of the Sophomore Class. It is not my purpose to shirk any duty or responsibility, but when confronted by the arduous task of compiling facts about such noble and outstanding characters in our college campus as the membership of the Sophomore Class contains, I feel very incapable. But nevertheless, I shall proceed in a general but brief way to relate as much data concerning our class as modesty will permit me to say. But first allow me to assure the reader it is not my desire to detract interest from the histories of the illustrious Senior and Junior Classes, found elsewhere in The Harveyan. However, I feel it my duty to use every effort to do the Sophomore Class justice, because never before in the whole history of our dear old Alma Mater has any sophomore class contained such already prominent characters as does the Sophomore Class of nineteen hundred twenty-three.

One distinguishing characteristic about this class is that all eight members at one time or other were sons and daughters of West Virginia. Now, one has wandered into the mountains and taken unto himself a Kentucky Belle, and calls the Blue Grass State his home. The other members of the Class yet reside among the hills of West Virginia, the counties Calhoun and Monroe yielding perhaps more members than any other county in the state.

In the two years of college life, each member has wonderfully improved in many ways—the credit for which is liberally given to the dear professors and the college in general. But permit me to say that each class member has distinguished himself before he had ever enrolled in the Freshmen Class, two years ago. One had served Uncle Sam in the Navy during the World War. Another at the same time was Chief Time-keeper of the Charleston Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company. Still another had been first assistant to the Advertising Manager of the Parkersburg News. Two more of our Sophomores won renown on the gridiron. Another, famous as a “jitney driver,” and last, but in no sense least at all, the only fair members of our class had gained prominence in the world of beauty, and have already in their young lives caused many a young man to wish to possess ample means to support a fair one of his own. Since the class as a whole was of such maturity and possessed this wide experience, its members escaped the usual embarrassment that the average freshmen must endure.

But upon entering the freshmen class and later becoming sophomores the usefulness and popularity of each individual did not diminish but continued to grow. From this class, the two literary societies each chose a president and minor officers. Likewise three annual literary contestants have been chosen from its ranks—all making a creditable showing. Two are "Scribblers," the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s have chosen leaders and delegates to represent the college at Student Conventions were chosen from our group. This distinguished class has given the football team Captain Westfall. And from our number President Pettis, after looking the student body over, selected our Nellie to be secretary for him in the college office. While yet in our sophomore year, the church has called and placed three classmates as pastors of important stations in the Huntington and Charleston districts. Seven are members of the Southern Methodist Church, one a Baptist, six are Democrats and two belong to the Grand Old Party. The class grade record has been good, some soaring at times as high as any other in college, while occasionally one would lower beneath a wave, but soon to reappear and paddle safely to the shore of "Getting By."

This completes the history of this already famous group of college men and women, but in order that the reader might judge the future careers of these persons, in a few closing remarks the calls that come ringing in the ears of each sophomore will be stated. Bishopric calls "Mac," Art and Funk. The Democratic party is calling for the statesmanship of Homer. The Y. M. C. A. must have a leader to put on a world wide campaign and Harrison lays down the "Bamboo Self-filling Fountain Pen" and his "Ajax Comb Strop"—though he still retains controlling interest in the Hager Department Store at Madison—he answers: "Here am I, send me." The athletic world calls for Christian gentlemen who have starred in all phases of athletics and "Deacon" advances. A young millionaire has asked, "Will you leave all and join me in happy wed-lock to make my life one joyous song?" And Nellie after much and serious consideration says, "Yes." But "Huck," always the favorite and life of the class, as popular and lovable as the Divine hand can shake, listens to the wooing of many; but rather than show favoritism to any or to cause jealousy to arise has resolved to go through life alone and depending upon her own resources.

COLLEGE FRESHMEN CLASS

Freshman Class History

FROM Blue Ridge rocky slopes to Kanawha's charming leas, flocked the gay young things, all high school graduates, coming to college. Beautiful "Brown-eyed Susans" and fresh "Jump-up-Johnnies," and as green; mountain lads and lassies all, bringing with them the pleasant fragrance and beauty of their mountains and valleys. In such a manner, we came, filled with animation and confidence, for we believed ourselves to be well educated. We had accomplished the unbelievable, the thing hoped for by our parents, and despaired of by each of us; we had extracted enough knowledge from our books and teachers to be granted high school diplomas. Yes, we were well educated and had come to Morris Harvey to add the finishing touches and perhaps a little polish to our education. But, Oh! how sad was the disillusionment, for we found that even after finishing high school that one must study if he stays in college, and that is why some of our members are not present to enjoy the fruits of our victory. They find out things too late. It was no matter who our instructors were, they turned out to be "hard-boiled," and expected entirely too much of us. It appeared to be bad taste if one of us ate with his knife, sipped his coffee daintily with his spoon, or drank his soup from the bowl with a healthy gurgle. Many things were learned by us in a surprisingly short time. Our whole world has been overturned, and slowly we felt ourselves sinking in the estimation of the faculty. A sad deficiency had been created in our estimation of ourselves, also. Even the faculty and the president do not take us seriously. They never ask us to speak in chapel.

When the College Student Body was organized, we again suffered a surprise; none of us even nominated for presidency. They might have given us a chance for we are smart and talented, even though we are young. The Freshmen Class. This was one organization in which they could not keep our members from holding office. We elected three Freshmen to hold offices in the Class. Spicer Burford was elected by an overwhelming majority, amid the shouts and acclamations of the thousands who were present to hear the first news of the election. Virgil Ware, after a tight race with his opponent, was selected as the best man fitted to be vice-president, but there is still much discussion over the southern part of the state as to whether or not he exceeded the maximum amount of money allowed to carry on his campaign. Charles Green received the largest number of votes for secretary, but it was thought to be mostly on the merits of his name rather than his ability.

With such leadership the class overcame many drawbacks, and are approaching the end of their first year in college. Even though the obstacles were many and the battles hard, we are standing on the brink, looking across the glorious future, and our second college year. Let us not despair even if the upper-classmen do oppress us. We shall keep on fighting until we, ourselves, are upper-classmen, when our freshmen year will be only a cloud dipping the horizon. Man is the master of his own fate, the pilot of his destiny.

HISTORIAN.

Class Poem

With incantations loud and long
 We called on Father time,
 At last he heard, and tottered forth
 To meet us—grand, sublime.

We quailed beneath his ancient smile,
 But then we wished to find
 What, for each member of our class
 The old man had in mind.

So plucking all our courage up,
 We asked him. If you'll stay,
 We'll tell in brief and hurried words
 The things we heard him say.

There's Burford, "Spiker if you please,"
 Class President today—
 A preacher, Methodist, of course,
 A Bishop, perhaps, some day.

A singer of great note will be
 The pretty Catherine Long—
 Ham Sneddin, late in life, will write
 Great fiction, verse, and song.

And Virgil Wire, of nimble wits,
 A humorist will be—
 While "Tarzan" Taylor, as a judge,
 In the whole world's eyes you'll see.

Cliff Chard will be a financier,
 Charles Green a lawyer great—
 Paul King a scientific man,
 It's written on life's slate.

Virginia Peters—oh, but stay!
 Why speak of her alone?
 I see Delaney by her side—
 "Two hearts that beat as one."

And "Twenty" Lantz, a preacher's son,
 An athlete, through and through—
 I see him Morris Harvey's coach
 When "Beck" seeks pastures new.

Virginia Hall in land afar,
 A teacher—missionary;
 Pauline will teach geometry
 And be successful, very.

A woman-hater, Alvin Gore,
Will be a great physician—
Hospitals he will have in charge,
Fulfill a lofty mission.

Elizabeth, brown-eyed and sweet,
And "Mother" Jones together
Will walk down the lengthening years
In fair and stormy weather.

And Mary Ely—what of her?
Home-maker—yes, she'll marry,
And all her life content will read
Psychology of "Larry."

While Mary Burns to Africa
A missionary nurse—
The class' one old maid will be—
Thus ends the prophet's verse.

And Father Time was quickly gone,
We found ourselves alone—
And we have told unstintedly
The ways of life made known.

Now what remains for us to do—
For life is no mere dream—
Is act and live our motto out,
"To be and not be seen."

Academy Senior Class History

IN the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred nineteen, over the hills of West Virginia, Kentucky and other neighboring states, there was a great uproar among the families of the boys and girls who were planning on leaving for school. There came a silent call to the parents of these boys and girls, and they were cast away upon the faculty of Morris Harvey Academy. After several days at school and the "blues" had been driven away, the Freshmen Class was organized. We were very insignificant creatures and were made to wear ribbons on our hair and socks, by our upper classmen. The first year, which seemed so long, soon passed away and after vacation we were again back at school, and known as Sophomores. Several had fallen by the wayside and others had been picked up. We were hardly recognized by the faculty and student body, but ahead we could see in the horizon of time the word Senior painted.

In the fall of '22 when time had brought us back again there were only about twenty of the class that had survived. We banded together as a strong class, to give our small part to the school. "Jimmy" Trimble was our president and a hard fight was put forth. A picnic was given the Senior Class to show our respect and appreciation. By this time it was realized that but a few of the ones who had started in nineteen hundred nineteen would be back to be called Seniors, which was the height of our ambition.

In September of '23, when duties of school were again taken up, there were thirty-four Seniors, and the Senior Class was organized. At this meeting a happening occurred which shall never be forgotten by the members of the Senior Class. We were made known to Mr. Ely, a man of high ideals and thoughts. At the glance of him great thoughts came into our minds, to be ideal people, as Mr. Ely a man. We named our Class "The Ely Class," which shall always mean to us a class of usefulness and nothing complete until the best is obtained.

We selected rings and pins, in October, which caused us to begin to show our dignity and rightful place of honor. We may have been quiet and did not boast so much of our worth, but the class has been very active in school activities, as several members served on the Harveyan staff, Lyceum Committee, Basketball Teams and other social functions of the school.

On February fourteenth a Valentine party was given, and the Varsity Basketball Team was entertained. The Junior Class gave the Seniors a banquet, which was one of the largest social events of the season. Too much cannot be said for the Juniors, for they are one of the most sociable and precise classes in school.

As any Senior Class could not be complete without a class play, "All of a Sudden Peggy," a three-act farce, was given on May twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred nineteen. As this is just our history of four years of high school, wait and read the life history of the class ten years from now—when we have reached our ideals, the ideals which we have set as our goal.

L. S., Historian.

Academy Seniors Last Will and Testament

E the Senior Class of 1923, do hereby make our last will and testament:

To the Juniors, we leave our most treasured possession, our dignity. May they guard and keep it as we have throughout our Seniorhood. To the members of the Faculty, we leave no hard feelings. In order that the high school may be a better institution, we do hereby bequeath these blue laws, which are to-wit:

1. No sparking in the halls, church, or social hour.
2. No freshmen may keep social hour.
3. No high school girl may go with a college man.
4. No high school man may go with a college girl.
5. No girls, but Seniors, will be allowed to use rouge or lipstick except in the privacy of their rooms.
6. Senior girls only can walk to and from chapel with boys.
7. Underclassmen are to always be at the service of the Senior boys and always go to them for advice.
8. Any underclassman who is caught with cigarettes in his possession may have the privilege of buying a Senior a carton of Camels.
9. All students in high school shall be required to keep a notebook in each and every one of his studies.
10. Freshmen who reside in Billingsley Hall must, on every Monday, thoroughly clean one Senior's room.

We leave all these rules and regulations in care of the Juniors and hoping that they will be carried out to the letter. Our seats in the auditorium we leave to the Juniors, hoping that they will be as regular in attendance as we were. To the freshmen class of '24 we leave all our old book reports, notebooks, and old textbooks. The following personal bequeaths are made:

"Peggy" Douthat wills her vamping ability to Nannie Ellen Frye to add to her already ample supply.

When Maud and Mary Christian receive their diplomas, they wish to leave in return for them their Lizzie, as they think that the College needs to give a course in automobile driving to attract Candy Ankles.

Doyle Yoak, the star orator of the Senior Class, leaves to Bill Dower his speaking ability as Bill's tongue seems to be constantly on the move.

Lenna Jarrel, upon taking leave of us this year, wills her sweet disposition to Eulah Stallman, hoping all the while that Eulah will never lose her well-known qualities along that line.

While saying good-bye to her high school days, Essylt Crowe leaves to Nell Jimison her well-known "spit-curl," as she thinks such an article would be becoming to her.

Martha Neel, one of our most loved Seniors, leaves the petition which she has carried from room to room of Rosa Harvey Hall during the last few years to Virginia White, hoping that she will some day get up enough courage to sign it.

During one of her generous moods, Lydia Swetnam leaves the "Fife" that she has treasured so in her Senior Year to just anyone who seems bent on a musical career.

John Kirby, upon leaving this year, wills his tattered books to Ruth Baker, and if she uses them as they have been in the past he will send her a button from his West Point uniform.

Wishing to do a good deed, Julia Chapman leaves to Spence Shannon her spare inches, hoping that they will be of some use to him some day.

Walter Steen leaves the important place which he thinks he holds in Morris Harvey Academy to Louise Pelphrey.

Phil Harrison leaves to Vivian Allen his curly locks, hoping she will never have any use for them.

Gladys Short wills the broom, mop and dust pan of the second floor of Rost Harvey Hall to Patty Frye, and later she will send her a book of instruction upon the use of them.

Mae Brooks wills Milan Howard to Mable Beasley if the Royalty has no objections.

George Leman leaves the shattered pieces of the hearts he has broken during his exciting career at Morris Harvey to Richard Webb.

Marguerite Hart wills her quite charming manners to Eliza Ball, hoping they will be used in the future.

"Jimmy" Darrah wills his dancing ability and graceful ways to "Slewfeet."

Mary Burns leaves her geometry book to Thelma Dower, who hopes the third time will be the lucky one if she retains that book in her possession.

Mattie Baxter leaves to Deacon Westfall her Southern brogue, as it might be of use to him when travelling in Kentucky next summer.

Beulah Collinsworth leaves to our good friend Roy Flint her industrious nature.

Pinkey Chambers leaves his entertaining wit to Sylvia Henderson.

Florrie Hager, in taking leave of us, wills her good behavior to "Bill" Taylor.

Harwood Taylor leaves to Calvert Kelly his skill in basketball, to be used in the high school tournament next year.

Ralph Thompson wills to Cecil Andrews his short trousers.

Hortense King leaves her good intentions to Sallie Long.

Polly Caton leaves to Louise Pelphrey her bobbed hair.

Margaret Smith wills all those class cuts she has made against herself to Helen Jarrel.

Mildred Love wills one-half dozen of her Senior pictures to Morris Harvey College to be used as they think best.

Set unto our hand and seal, this year of our Lord, One thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

Valedictory

GOOD FRIENDS, the exercise of the day must come to a close. This day might well be compared to a bridge across the gap between our happy school days and the years of responsibility that lie before us. Now the bridge is almost crossed.

The morning sun will find us on the other shore with new environments and new activities ahead of us. On the morrow we shall face a new outlook, with changed perspective and a different sense of values. The careers we would build for ourselves demand planning, striving, and unceasing effort. But it is fitting to the occasion for us to pause a moment now and reflect over the happy memories of school days before we say farewell to the never-to-be-forgotten years spent around here.

Classmates, this is the last time we shall all be together in a school exercise. The halcyon days of our associations as fellow students end to-day. Every beat of our hearts is ushering us on to the end of our class career.

Will you stand and pause for a moment, dear classmates, as memory penetrates the scenes of these happy years? Fix the pictures of those glorious times on memory's walls till they shall never fade. To-day marks the end of some of our happy school days here and the beginning of our contact with the sober, work-a-day world.

What is the one great outstanding picture in your memories? Ah, dear classmates, you know what it is. It is the pleasure and joy in our contact and associations with each other, in study, in play and good fellowship—these are the things that tint every scene a rosy hue.

And back of all our life here has stood our dear teachers, aiding, counselling, sympathizing and encouraging us with untiring patience in all our troubles, our sorrows and our joys. Dear classmates, emotions arise within me, and words refuse to appear, suitable to express as it should be, the great appreciation which I know that each one of you has for these kind teachers, who have so faithfully worked for us, doubling our joys and dividing our sorrows with ever an eye for what was best for us. We, as a class and individually, have been helped, stimulated, inspired, guided, advised and benefitted by these kind teachers. No worry has been too trivial or task too arduous for them to perform for us. They have always been interested in the things that would be most beneficial in helping us to reap the greatest possible benefit from our school days.

And now, dear classmates, to these kind, unselfish advisors, we must say farewell. No longer shall we be permitted to go to them daily in our perplexities or meet them who have been so much to us and who have had such profound influence on our lives.

But let us not pass on without acknowledging that deep debt of gratitude which we owe to our beloved Alma Mater for the many opportunities and benefits it had provided for us. We love you Morris Harvey and will always have in our hearts a spirit of loyalty to you.

For some of us, dear classmates, our school days are at an end. We have crossed the bridge, and must now say goodbye to our school, our dear teachers, and each other. And so fond, joyous, happy years, goodbye; and to our dear teachers, farewell.

J. W. K., Valedictorian.

The Mediums talk of Spirits,
 As all of you know full well,
 So the future of the members of '23
 I entreated one to foretell.
 And this was what was told me—
 I hope each one agrees—
 If you've planned a different future,
 Remember the Spirits—please!

Our president, Lydia Swetnam,
 Will champion Woman's Cause—
 She'll sit in the halls of Congress
 And help to make great laws.
 "Pinkey," the pest and disturber,
 A preacher some day will be—
 Ralph Thompson and "Jimmie" Darrah
 As college professors you'll see.

Beulah, our artist lassie,
 A minister will wed—
 Leman will be a lawyer,
 And the courts of fame will tread.
 Maude and Mary Christian
 Will sing in a far-off land—
 Doyle Yoak as a Latin professor
 Before great classes will stand.

Lenna, Essylt and Mildred
 Teachers are destined to be—
 And yet not always, for some day
 They'll sail matrimony's sea.
 John Kirby will sit in power—
 You'll see in the President's chair;
 Harrison'll be a banker—
 Gladys Summers an artist fair.

Margaret, Julia and Florrie
 Will enter business some day—
 While "Shorty" and Mae and Hortense
 Home-makers will walk life's way.
 Mattie will lecture widely,
 Pauline a teacher will be—
 "Tarzan" will be a doctor—
 And Martha a bride you'll see.

Marguerite Hart as an actress
 A brilliant success will attain,
 Till at last she wearies of acting
 And home pleasures seeks again.
 And Steen will delve in science,
 Till Darwin shall lose his fame—
 And even Walker and Blackwell
 Shall bow before his name.

How if you would know more fully
 The future of one and all,
 Just wait ten years, or perhaps less,
 And on each one of us call.
 So "Not on the heights but climbing,"
 Are the members of '23—
 Life's waiting and we are preparing
 Its very summits to see.

ACADEMY JUNIOR CLASS

Academy Junior Class History

THE Junior Class of '23 had its beginning in September of 1920. Although our Freshman Class was organized and had its meetings regularly, very little was heard of it. During our Sophomore year we gradually began to realize that we were real students of Morris Harvey Academy and that we must get down to real work.

At last there came a day when we realized that we had reached our Junior year in Morris Harvey Academy and must make the name of the Junior Class honored. Our Class was small, containing those who felt that they could not afford to tax their brains in trying to graduate in three years. Many of the students who had labored with us during our Sophomore and Freshmen years, now went on to partake of the glory of being a Senior, going out into the world to leave us behind.

We chose Miss Verna Hamlin as our leader to lead us through our year of success and—but we were sure that we would not have any failures. We were very anxious about the time of the first semester examination, but we were not forced to form a bad opinion of any of the instructors, as none of us flunked in any of our classes. The last semester we worked hard and hope to enter the Senior Class next year with a record of not “flunking” in anything.

The largest event in the Junior History is the Junior-Senior Banquet, which we gave the Seniors. As I have said before, the Junior Class was small and to give the Seniors a banquet would mean hard work for each and every member of the Class. Nevertheless we were not afraid of work and so far as we could see the Seniors seemed to have a very enjoyable evening.

I could write an account of each member of the Class, but there is not any use in doing that as I have dwelled long enough on the glory of our Class, to let you understand that we were a model class, of which the School could be proud. So be contented, dear reader, that some position of honor will be filled by each member of the Junior Class of '23.

T. V., Historian.

Academy Junior Class Prophecy

ONE bright day as I lay under some trees in the woods, I began thinking of the many happy days that had passed in the halls of M. H. C., and suddenly I had a longing to know what the future had in store for the members of my beloved class.

I must say I was somewhat amazed, shocked, surprised, and happy when Ariel broke loose from Prospero, jumped out of the "Tempest" and came to my aid. I will give you a few of the prophecies just as Ariel gave them to me.

He started with Hilda Jane Brown. Now that's strange, isn't it? But anyhow I think he made a good start. Hilda, we're sorry for you because you are to remain fat forever. So you might just as well put aside your reducing apparatus and spend the time on your "spit curl" or in trying to produce a louder crack with your "Juicy Fruit."

"Nannie Ellen," Ariel says, "is really going to graduate next year." The news, we think, should bring gladness to her loving heart. Alice is really going through the looking glass into wonderland. Don't you tell a soul, and I will whisper it to you. She is going to sail the sea of matrimony. Vivian, however, is going to remain single until—? In the meantime she is going to study French, because, Ariel says, with a sad look on his face, "He is going to be a Frenchman."

Flint is going to Oxford in the days to come. He will graduate with honors and come out a second John Wesley. Cecil is going to be forever a lover of women. Although some day Dan Cupid will take a good aim and then—goodby Cecil! Raymond, the quietest boy in our class, is destined to become a bachelor. But he will have wonderful success in the career he chooses.

Burton is going to startle, not only our own nation, but the nations of other continents of the earth, because he will be one of the greatest musicians of the age. He is to write a composition which will be even more famous than that of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata." Nova will bring honors to herself in an educational line, before she enters upon her domestic duties. She is destined to bring happiness to the fortunate man. Poor Sylvia, there's no hope for you! You are to be an old maid. But Ariel says that you will be happy in making the world brighter for others and that your kind heart will cheer all with whom you come in contact.

After receiving her education, Nell is to sail out upon matrimony's sea. The groom-to-be will be a successful business man, and they will live very happily. Thelma is to become a great renowned painter of her time. Her pictures are to be placed in all the leading art galleries both in this country and Euoper. She is to become a renowned housekeeper as well. Verna, the beloved president of our class, is to bring happiness to thousands of despairing hearts in "The Dark Continent." She is destined to become one of the most noted missionaries of her time.

A great future is in store for Forest Stewart. He will be one of the greatest politicians of the age. His tact and ability will win for him a place in Congress and he will accomplish many things for the betterment of humanity. Kester Epling is going to win much fame for himself throughout the entire world with his voice. However he will not spend his entire life in singing to the world, because he loves the fireside. Some beautiful woman is to make his life happy.

With these words Ariel flew back into "The Tempest."

"Oh, Junior Class, I wish you health,
I wish you joy in good store,
I wish you heaven after death,
What could I wish you more?"

Academy Sophomore Class History

WHEN we look back into the history of our class, dear are the reminiscences which it brings to the minds of those who helped to make it. It is thus that the Sophomore History is written. It is not intended to be a history of each individual member, but of the class as a whole, as if it were a closely connected family. If we look back into our Freshmen year, we must admit that on our first appearance in Barboursville we were confident that we would take the College by storm and capture our A's and P's at our leisure. It was not until after we had attended classes several times that we reluctantly felt our assurance fade away. But after recuperating, we entered again into the fray with added vim and energy.

At the beginning of our Sophomore career we entered with a new determination for a prosperous year. We assembled on October 3rd, 1922, for the purpose of electing officers and this is the result of the meeting: President, Elwood Ross; Vice-President, Edward Hansford; Secretary, Ora Wintz; Sergeant-at-arms, Milan Howard. We are very proud of our devoted president, who has led us through a prosperous year. He was very wise in suggesting that we organize a book club, which we did.

Our members have taken a very active part in all activities of the literary societies of the school, which has won us great fame among the student body. Many of our boys have shown great skill in the athletics and much honor has been bestowed upon them, as we have two representatives on the Academy Basketball Team and also one representative on the Girls' Basketball Team.

On May 23rd, our class had a great picnic. At ten o'clock we were on our way to Pea Ridge to spend a happy afternoon, and a happy afternoon it was. In all the history of the Sophomore Class you will not find a happier day than this one. We enjoyed the entire afternoon in games and "eats" with great delight. Although we have had many parties and picnics, this one will be remembered forever.

Now that we have given you a few events in the history of our class we will willingly resign our place as Sophomores of Morris Harvey Academy.

So here's good-bye, dear Sophomore Class;
On to the next year we must pass;
We leave behind our rooms and our books
To be filled with Freshmen spooks.

M. H. and P. J., Historians.

ACADEMY FRESHMEN CLASS

Academy Freshman Class History

VERY few historians ever tell the real truth in writing their histories, but I am going to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. In the mid-semester examinations we made a good showing, very few of us being left behind. Nevertheless the examinations made us realize where we stood. We certainly made a good record in Algebra. Freshmen may come, and Freshmen may go, but that record will go on forever.

The second semester opened on the twenty-fourth of January and we were still unorganized. One morning the principal of the academy asked us to stay after chapel and at that time he explained to us that we were to march to the dedication of the new gymnasium, and to do this we must be organized. He called for the president of the class and to his dismay we did not have any. The other classes had presidents and other officers but the Freshmen were slow in getting organized and did not have any. The principal appointed a president until an election could be held and the following week the election was held, Miss Taylor being elected as president.

We then tried to get the Freshmen together to select a class flower. At the first meeting we had very little success and at the second we had worse success but after many attempts we selected the colors red and white as our class colors. The white carnation as our class flower and our motto: "We begin to finish."

Next came the confusion of getting our picture taken. At last it was done and as we were coming back through the hall from having our picture taken the Freshman and Junior Presidents had a "spat" for the first time in history. For no Freshman had ever had the nerve to rebuke a Sophomore, let alone a Junior. The Juniors had elected Mr. Black for their Sponsor and the Freshmen had elected him also for their Sponsor, but after going through the matter, it was decided that the Freshmen had elected him first.

Next year we hope to be Sophomores, but who can tell, until after the finals, but some day, if we are industrious and if we do not fall into the pits of careless, we shall have reached our goal, we will be Seniors.

F. L. B., Historian.

Prophecy

ONE DAY as I was walking through the woods, I came across an old mossy log and being rather tired, I sat down to rest and while sitting there I fell asleep. I had a dream and it was so strange that I don't think that anyone could have one like it. This was my dream:

William Hunt, Benjamin Hedrick, Mr. Harsh, Mr. Cooper and Mr. O'Dell have all become successful clergymen. Ruth Lambert, Lillian Baumgardner, Bee Miller and Helen Jarrel have all become famous writers and their books are welcomed in every home.

But Willia Taylor, Ethel Ward and Patty Frye are all destined to sail the sea of matrimony. Previous to my dream I did not think that we had any people preparing to be missionaries, but in my dream there appeared four names who had made a success as missionaries. They are: Anna Browning, Roma Dawson, Mable Beasley and Lucille Morrison.

Harry Burgess is in Congress and Thomas Crumpler has given up his novels and has entered into business and is making a wonderful success. Karl Degler and Arnet Hager have found that their dreams are realized; they are electrical engineers. Estelle Lambert could not withstand the temptation and has married an English Peer, but a plain American suits Miss Fannin.

Gertrude Gothard, Goldie Davis and Belle Woofter have all become successful housewives. Miss Jackson has become a nurse and it is said that there are very few like her. Margaret Kellam has become a member of high society, while Zelma Midkiff is known throughout the land for her beauty. Mr. McNeer has become, after much study, a doctor, and Robert Spencer has become a colonel in the army. Albert Holstien is a veterinarian and Raymond Henderson is a college professor. Fred Caton has gone South and is very happy down there, while James Bays has gone West and it is said that he has bought a large cattle ranch, of which we are sure he will make a success. Seth Ball is a well-known athlete and Joe and Robert Barrett have formed a Glee Club and are travelling in Europe and are famous throughout the world.

The last thing in my dream was a vision of a wonderful white-haired old lady, who lives all alone and sighs, "It might have been."

ATHLETICS

HERMAN R. BECKELHEIMER

Herman (Beck) Beckelheimer was made director of physical education at Morris Harvey College in September 1920.

He is an alumnus of the College, having attended it for four years. He was unusually prominent in athletics, and was honored by being elected captain of the baseball and the football teams in his junior year. From Morris Harvey College he went to Vanderbilt University where he was a member of the football team. Here he became famous and was mentioned as a member of the mythical All-Southern eleven.

His experience as an athletic mentor is a long one. He was Athletic and Physical Training Director at Southern College of Florida one year, and Bethany College, West Virginia, one year. During the war he was stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia.

His work at Morris Harvey has been most commendable. His teams have been representative ones, some of them having made excellent records. Coach Beckelheimer is a gentleman through and through, and his influence has extended to the members of the teams which he has coached. This influence has made teams under his tutelage known throughout the state as sportsmen and gentlemen.

“When Duty Whispers Low, Thou Must”

He wanted to study his Latin and Greek,
But a skirt fluttered up the street,
So he joyfully chucked his books away
And followed with flying feet.
Oh, silk, or satin, or calico,
A glance and a smile, and away we go.

The Annual Staff met in its office room
While the Dramatic Class above moaned,
The Editor—where was he?
Ask of the winds which far and near
With calico strewed the lea.
Ah, silk, or satin, or calico,
A glance and a smile, and away we go.

He's up for debate in the Pierian halls,
But all such trash must go to smash
When the lure of calico calls.
Or, silk, or satin, or calico,
A glance and a smile, and away we go.

Will the time ever come to this suffering place,
When business may have its fling—
Societies, Lectures and Annual Staff—
When the students will cease to sing.
Oh, silk, or satin, or calico,
A glance and a smile, and away we go.

Another Day at H. H. C.

(As Samuel Pepys would record in his diary)

UP betimes and hasted over to breakfast, where I regaled the time with hot biscuits and "zip" until the absence of both cut short my efforts and then for a walk to the post office, where I was overjoyed to receive a letter from my sweetheart, who is a good girl and very charming. Nevertheless, I was much cast down at not receiving my weekly stipend from my fond parents, of which I find myself much in need, with sandwiches and candy to buy, I know not which way to turn to borrow—such being my custom when I am broke.

Then away to Economics class where I did listen to a learned discussion of the tariff question by our dear friend and classmate, Reverend Clay, who is a good man and waxes long and eloquently on the subject of economics, together with our dear teacher, Professor Pangle.

At chapel, to which place I then betook myself, I found myself much annoyed by the loud and fervent singing of Mr. Burford and also noticed that my dear friend Mr. Swann was attempting to grow a mustache beneath his nose, all of which tickled me much and I would have laughed had it not been for the solemn appearance of the seniors in their caps and gowns sitting before me, and the reading of the Scriptures, to which I listened attentively.

Then to the campus where I met my History inspector, Miss Schoenberg, poor wretch, who rebuked me with much gusto for not appearing at her class upon the day previous and appeared to be much incensed for which I was very sorry as I needed the grade sadly. Much disheartened, I removed myself to Chapman's where I drank a coca-cola and smoked a pipe of the filthy weed, to which I am much addicted, and finding my spirit rising, I betook myself to my class in Bacteriology where I heard a learned discussion on moles and yeast until dinner time.

Dinner being over I strolled here and there over the campus, smiling and holding converse with the girls, who are dear, sweet things, and whom many of our boys take much delight in making love to—especially Mr. Delaney and Mr. Roy King. I also shrewdly suspect that they, the dear, sweet things, are the cause of Mr. Swann's disgracing himself with his mustache—although the fair Nellie Rosencrance strongly avers that she "Detests" them.

While thinking on these things I was much disconcerted to hear the bell ring for classes and forthwith repaired to my English History class—where I enjoyed a nice nap in spite of the disturbance around me. On waking, I was, believe me, much vexed to find that the rest of my classmates had left me and the class had been over for fifteen minutes.

Spent the rest of the afternoon wandering around aimlessly, hither and yon, smoking and thinking upon the evils of the world. I met several friends and also observed Professor Pangle and Miss McNeer out walking, which delight my heart much, as it turned my thoughts to the days when I was young and much in love in the spring. I also thought on the fickleness of women and resolved forthwith to write to my girl and ask her if she loved me, to which she would no doubt respond "Yes," although I really suspect that she does not. Returned in time for supper where I was delighted to find a friend from whom I borrowed some of the filthy lucre of the world,— with which I took a young lady to a basketball game where our boys disported themselves wtih much gusto and enthusiasm and I called wildly at them and beseeched them to win—all of which alarmed my fair companion who thought I was beside myself and had gone crazy. But I assured her of my sanity and forthwith returned her to Rosa Harvey Hall with many protestations of my devotion to her, which delighted her much and myself also, albeit I did wonder whether she believed me or not.

To Chapman's for a little refreshment and so home and to bed.
